

Join us for a volunteer recognition event in celebration of National Library Week 2010

The Library: a Physiological Study

Stokely Towles celebrates the love of libraries and laughter.

Tuesday, April 13 at 6:30 pm
Doors open to the public at 6:10 pm
Burlington Public Library

Stokely Towles collaborates with institutions to create performances that reflect their stories and cultures. He is a visiting professor at Colorado College and Antioch University in Seattle, teaching performance, studio art and creative writing courses. His work has been presented at the Seattle Art Museum, Henry Art Gallery, and nationally at venues in New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Chicago.

"...he is an unmacho comic worrier and a gentle soul struggling to drink meaning from the world's chaos."

-The Stranger Weekly

This evening is funded by the Friends of the Library, and presented at no charge.
Everyone is welcome.
